

SAVE THE DATE !

The third R&D dating for animal health and innovation will take place on November 28th & 29th 2017 in Strasbourg (France).

The R&D animal health and innovation meetings are organized by the French association of animal health industry (SIMV) and hosted within Biofit.

This event will lead to business to business meetings (BtoB) to initiate high-level exchanges between research departments of the health industry (veterinary and human), and public research, as well as biotechnology companies (start-ups).

The aim is to continue to enhance new partnerships between public and private sectors (or private-to-private sector). This event provides us a perfect opportunity to promote more innovative and better value animal health research, by strengthening the leading position of France in Europe.

Hence, beyond the federation of research actors in animal health, the SIMV intends to the organization of these meetings to expand exchanges between animal and human health in order to mutually accelerate the development of new molecules, thereby promoting the « One Health » concept.

Let's Commit ourselves to animal - and public health innovation together!
